

Children's Resource Center-North

Guiding Wisconsin families of children and youth with special health care needs

Key Info about Children's Resource Center-North

- Children's Resource Center-North is a resource for families with children who have any type of disability or are seeking help receiving a diagnosis. We also provide support to educators, medical providers, and other professionals.
- While we serve families with diverse and complex medical needs, we also frequently support many families with resources on autism, behavioral health concerns, and/or mental illness.
- We are one of 5 Resource Centers in the state funded by DHS as part of Wisconsin Wayfinder: Children's Resource Network. Our main role is to field questions from families and professionals about services in Wisconsin and know what is available locally. We can save you time as we are happy to dig into resources or find more information.
- We maintain a list of therapists and providers in the area including what insurance they take, ages of clients, and the status of their waiting lists.
- Resource Centers are staffed by individuals with lived experience, primarily parents of children with disabilities. We take the time to listen and often can help families better
- Our staff provide information and make referrals related to private and public funding resources and programs. We take the time to explain to families what services are covered and why. We check to make sure that families know all that is available to them and coach families on how to advocate for what they need.
- We also offer parent support with loans from our resource library, connections for parents leaders, Parent Cafes, and referrals to the Parent-to-Parent support network.
